I. GENERAL INFORMATION

A. Overview of Services Requested and the Submission Process

In fulfilling its mission to promote and enhance the understanding of industrial design as a creative process, profession, marketing force and positive cultural dynamic, EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL requires the services of a firm to provide institutional planning services in connection with The Museum of Industrial Design (MoID) through the following anticipated phases: planning and schematic design, operational planning and design completion, capital campaign; implementation, and construction. A more detailed scope of services can be found in Section II.

EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL may select one or more such firms to provide some of the requested services for the MoID or may select a single firm/team to provide all services requested. Firms interested in submitting proposals to provide such services are required to follow the recommended guidelines and instructions contained in this Request for Proposals (RFP).

Proposals should provide a straightforward, complete and concise description of the proposer’s capabilities to satisfy the requirements of the RFP. Please prepare 2 copies of your proposal and work samples.

Proposers submitting a proposal in response to this RFP may be required to give an oral presentation of their proposal to EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL. This oral presentation may provide an opportunity for the firm to clarify or elaborate on the proposal but will in no way change the original submission. All staff identified in the proposal should be present at the oral presentation. EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL’s request for an oral presentation shall not constitute acceptance of a proposal.

Proposals must be received no later than 5:00 PM EDT, August 15, 2006. Deliver all proposals to:

EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL reserves the right to reject any or all proposals submitted if such election is deemed to be in its best interest. EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL assumes no obligation, no responsibility and no liability for costs incurred by the responding firms prior to the issuance of a contract.

B. Mission and Structure of Exhibitions International

EXHIBITIONS INTERNATIONAL (EI) is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that organizes exhibitions of decorative arts, design and architecture. EI is governed by a Board of Directors and an Advisory Council, both of which include important museum professionals and art world figures. To prepare EI’s exhibitions, EI works closely with leading scholars and curators to break new ground and lead the way in the areas of decorative arts and design. EI is specifically concerned with these areas because they have been historically underserved by art museums. EI’s expertise in the decorative arts and design is widely recognized, and, though small, EI is well respected and has an enviable record and reputation.

C. Summary of The Museum of Industrial Design

EI, through close cooperation with City Council, Tides Foundation and the Lower Manhattan Development Corporation (LMDC), has selected 15 Broad Street to be the home of the MoID after a thorough feasibility assessment that identified several important factors: financial viability, programmatic alignment, political uniformity and social impact.

The central element to EI’s mission is education. EI will establish additional programming in the form of exhibitions, programs, design competitions, lectures, film series, symposia, conferences and volunteering. The museum will also host an after-school design program, tours, workshops, a learning-by-design program and internships. The museum will provide a multimedia experience using digital kiosks to provide an interactive museum directory and learning stations related to current exhibits as well as a resource center with a library virtually connected through a dynamic website.

The scope of the exhibits will encompass all facets of the industrial design diaspora, including: architecture, identity/branding and consumer products. Possible exhibitions include Lower Manhattan Architecture, Swiss Contemporary Design, Mobile Living, Corporate Branding of Raymond Loewy and Neo-Consumer Technologies: iPods to Snowboards.

EI has secured a $100,000 planning grant in support of the MoID from the LMDC, which has indicated a strong willingness to provide additional capital support after outside support is secured. In addition to the contributions from the LMDC, Tides Foundation has also contributed support for the development of the MoID.

D. Overview of Planning and Design Process for the MoID Site

Master Planning Phase
EI will found The Museum of Industrial Design at the base of the Phillipe Starck condos across from the New York Stock Exchange at 15 Broad Street. Located at the fourth most-walked intersection in Manhattan, it will ensure New York City’s position at the forefront of industrial design, a cultural barometer of the future.

Financially, the MoID takes advantage of Tides Foundation’s leveraged support, which allows EI to purchase the Thoreau Art Center in the lower level of the building at a square footage price point well below the market rate. The negotiated lease-to-buy agreement allows EI a direct investment capitalization and provides for the long-term sustainability of the museum.

EI is particularly interested in revitalizing Lower Manhattan following the 9/11 terrorist attacks. The unique challenge to contribute innovatively to this revitalization was inspired by Council Member Alan Gerson’s report, “Campuses and Corridors: A Strategy for a Multi-campus Cultural District in Lower Manhattan,” along with subsequent conversations with Gerson’s office and Tides Foundation Shared Spaces and by the recent publication by the Center for an Urban Future, “Creative New York.” Together they have convinced EI that relocating EI’s operations to Lower Manhattan and establishing the MoID there will create the ideal composition for the long-term cultural and financial evolution of New York City.

E. Vision for The Museum of Industrial Design

MoID Statement and Program
The mandate of EI’s MoID is to promote the understanding and appreciation of industrial design and to give it a permanent home in Lower Manhattan. The MoID will provide a vehicle for promoting the significant development projects underway in the city and will serve as a catalyst for corporate involvement in Manhattan as firms invest in exhibits that will provide an artistic forum for their innovations.

The MoID has a coalition of support, including City Council, Tides Foundation Shared Spaces, the Industrial Design Society of America, the American Institute of Graphic Artists, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Industrial Design Network Foundation and the LMDC. This coalition will provide the museum the opportunity to effectively use all of its resources not only to accomplish its mission but also to serve as a catalyst for creating jobs, generating revenue, fueling tourism and promoting the cultural and economic development goals of the city.

The MoID will directly create job opportunities in operations and programming and will provide educational internships to students. The museum will significantly contribute to tourism by hosting design programming in conjunction with other events that occur in New York City, such as the International Contemporary Furniture Fair. In addition, the museum will administer programs that will include collaborations with our partner organizations, such as the Industrial Design Society of America (IDSA), American Institute of Graphic Artists (AIGA), and American Institute of Architects (AIA).

The MoID will also serve to directly enrich the cultural and educational wealth of Manhattan by providing relevant and educational exhibitions addressing the past, present and future currents of design as they relate to our local community and the world at large. The ideas presented and derived from the programming will drive progress and development of new technologies that will allow for the refinement of our environment in a balanced fashion. The MoID will establish exhibitions and programs that will examine the principles of design, the nature of materials, the human factor, technology, the industrial process and the multidisciplinary synthesis that contribute to effective industrial design. The museum will bring together designers, students, the public and a broad array of organizations, including IDSA, AIGA, the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the International Design Network Foundation. The presentation of exhibitions, lectures, film series, symposia, and conferences experienced in the context of visionary architecture, will make Lower Manhattan an even more vibrant hub of culture and commerce: a live-work-and-visit community for the world.
II. ANTICIPATED SCOPE OF SERVICES

Specifically, EI needs the services of an institutional planning firm to assist in its planning efforts for the MoID through the following anticipated phases: planning and schematic design; operational planning and design completion; capital campaign; implementation; and construction. For the initial phase of planning and schematic design, institutional planning is needed to further define the MoID’s content, physical space, operations and structure.

EI requests proposals for an institutional planning firm to provide services for the initial planning and schematic design phase including, but not limited to, 1) Program development; 2) Curatorial consulting and concept development; 3) Institutional planning; 4) Business planning, including an operations plan and market analysis; and 5) Implementation planning. The financial giants of the city will have a significant opportunity to entertain their clients directly across from the NYSE, presenting them a benefactor institution that will be well suited for addressing the marketing needs of their corporate patrons, fueling the city’s second largest industry. As one of the few institutions of its kind in the world, the MoID will be a feather in the cap of New York City as local residents and visitors from around the world make this museum a cultural destination.
